Chgo. Hgts. Man Nabbed at Mokena As Boozie Suspect

Mokena had a real exciting time Monday evening, when Deputy A. C. Schieblich and John Frisch, together with a company of other men, trailed up a truck which had passed thru Mokena onto the Lincoln highway, and arrested the driver on suspicion of transporting beer, as he had a load of barrels on the truck.

While passing thru Mokena, the driver of the truck met Al Hentch coming with his car toward Mokena, and both men met on the little bridge on the Christ Schenkel corner, south of town. The truck struck Al's car, and Al jumped out and got after the truck driver, who is alleged to have started cursing Al, whereupon the latter hurried back to Mokena and reported the matter at once to the local authorities, and a chase was started which resulted in the arrest of the truck driver near the Bormet place on the Lincoln highway.

The truck and driver were brought to Mokena. A man who said he was from Goodland, Ind., and who knew the truck driver, and was riding with him at the time the arrest was made, was at first also placed under arrest, but when he convinced Officer Frisch that he had met the truck driver at Joliet, and knowing him, had asked for a ride to Chicago Heights, where the truck was bound, he was released.

The truck driver, who gave his name as "Skinny" Rhinewald, of Chicago Heights, was locked up in the Mokena police station, and his truck load of barrels was taken to the Cooper & Hostert garage. The Indiana man caught a bus for Chicago Heights right after the arrest was made, and hurried to Rhinewald's father, Tony Rhinewald, owner of the Oxford hotel in Chicago Heights, and told him what had happened to him. A few hours later the father and the Indiana man came in a taxi. The younger Rhinewald was held under $2,000 bail. He refused to say whether he had near beer or real beer on his truck, and would not turn State's evidence. He would not make any confession to his father.

Young Rhinewald is about 24 years old, and saw active service in France with the A. E. F., and has several medals awarded him for bravery, and it is said this is the first time he was ever arrested.

After consulting the sheriffs office at Joliet on the matter and upon examining the contents of one of the barrels it was said the cargo was near beer. Deputy Schieblich was convinced that Rhinewald was not a beer runner and released him at mid-night.

Will County Goes Republican

The election Tuesday was quite a surprise and an eye-opener in some parts of the country. Will county, always a staunch Republican county, carried all candidates on the Republican ticket. Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil, the first woman representative from this district, was among those elected, and the women of the county are highly elated over this fact. They hope this will mark the beginning of cleaner and better politics with the women in office.

Over in Cook county everything went Democratic with the exception of the office of sheriff, which went to the Republican candidate, Peter Hoffman.

At Tinley Park a little trouble was reported at the polls when two watchers sent out from Chicago tried to show too much authority, and the election board would not stand for it. Officer Schmiedknecht was detailed on duty for the rest of the day, and quiet prevailed.

Tinley Park is also a strong Republican town. A total of 242 votes were cast, out of which there were 152 straight Republican votes, 22 straight Democrats and 17 split tickets.

The light wine and beer proposition and the soldiers' bonus went over big.

Engine Backfires; Breaks Girl's Wrist

While cranking a Ford Tuesday evening Miss Happy Brudder was painfully injured when the engine backfired breaking her right wrist. She was taken to the office of Dr. G. A. Kerr. The accident happened at the Henry Stellwagen place in Mokena.

Herbert Folkers Opens Law Office In Joliet

Attorney Herbert Folkers, a new legal light from Frankfort, has appeared on the Will county legal horizon, and has opened an office in the Haggie building, Joliet. Attorney Folkers is a graduate from Northwestern University, and has a wide circle of acquaintances thruout the county. Frankfort now lays claim to two attorneys, namely: Attorney Albert H. Krusemark and Attorney Herbert Folkers. His many friends wish Attorney Folkers much success in his new office.

wald was not a beer runner and released him at mid-night.

Pioneer Tinley Resident Passes 82nd Birthday

William Kimmel, well known Tinley Park resident, passed his 82nd birthday October 30th, and a company of friends and relatives gathered at his home and celebrated the event that day.

Mr. Kimmel is in good health and quite vigorous. He was born in Germany, and came to Bremen township in 1847 with his parents. He very plainly recalls the hardships of the pioneer days before the railroads were built. There were only 12 houses in all of Bremen township at that time.

Chicago was the only market point, and all grain, stock, produce, etc., had to be hauled there with oxen. Oats were sold for 18 cents a bushel. Butter was 5 cents a pound and eggs 5 cents a dozen. Hay sold for $5 per ton.

For 36 years Mr. Kimmel lived in Orland township, and for 32 years he resided in Bremen township. Mr. Kimmel is a kindly man, and highly esteemed in his community.

Are Worth Hunters Given Special Privilege?

Sometime ago Orland passed an ordinance that no shooting is allowed within the village limits. Some of the residents state, however, that some hunters from Worth have been shooting within the village limits, but that the game warden has made no attempt to arrest them, and the question is raised, "Have the Worth hunters special privileges?"

Open Switch Causes Wreck At Tinley Park

Carelessness on the part of an employe of the Powers Thompson Construction Co. in leaving the switch open, leading to this company's spur at Tinley Park, caused a bad wreck, Monday evening.

The local freight had pulled in from the west, and was backing over onto the siding. The local crew did not know the switch was open, and signaled the engineer to back up, which he did. The engine began to work hard, and the engineer gave it a full head of steam, when a terrific crash was heard. Upon examination, it was found that part of the local cars had been pushed into the spur, and struck the huge steam shovel. The local's caboose, a freight car and a coal car were piled up against the huge crane and were reduced to kindling wood. The crane was not damaged.

The wrecking crew from Blue Island was called out and cleared up the wreckage. Luckily no one was injured.

Be sure and read the list of high-class attractions advertised at the Grand and Lyric theaters, Blue Island, on an inside page of this paper. They are showing the very best in motion pictures.

New Parochial School at Orland

October 29th was a day of rejoicing for Orland Lutheran church. Not only did splendid weather make all hearts glad, but the fact that on that day the new $4500 parochial school of Christ Lutheran church was to be opened and dedicated.

A well filled church listened attentively to Rev. G. Bauer of Chicago Heights, who preached the dedicatory sermon in German. He spoke eloquently on the blessings derived from a Christian day school. The children of the school sang a beautiful hymn. After the sermon, the ministers, Rev. W. C. Greve, Rev. G. Bauer and Rev. Koch, followed by the building committee, Chas. Habenicht, Philip Ebeling and John Schmadeke, and two trustees, with the whole congregation, assembled in the new school building. Here Rev. W. C. Greve, the resident pastor, read the dedication service. Mr. Paul Buszin, school superintendent, addressed the meeting.

The service closed with the singing of hymn No. 293.

The English service in the evening was held with an overflowing assemblage. Rev. Koch of Steger, Ill., spoke heartening words to children, parents and friends of the school.

Mr. Paul Buszin again addressed the audience, praising them for erecting such a splendid modern building, and admonished to walk circumspectly, redeeming the time. The children beautified the service with the singing of the hymn: "God Bless Our School."

The collection at both services was lifted for the purpose of buying better school equipment.

Christ school is two years old. Last year enrollment was 10; this year 20; an increase of 100%.

A regular public school course is given, influenced by the Word and Spirit of God.

May God bless our school.

Winter Months Cause Higher Light Bills

"This is the season when residential electric lighting bills rise," said an official of the Public Service Company. "It happens every year, and the simple explanation is that lighting hours lengthen. October bills will show an increase over September, and those for November will be higher than for October. The minimum number of what we call daylight hours come on in December. In January the number lengthens, and the process goes on until June, when the maximum is reached.

"In June the average use of electric light in residences is 1.55 hours per day. In December it is 6.85 hours, nearly four times that of June.

"The daylight saving time system in general use operates to reduce the time people use electric light in summer, thus serving to increase the difference between summer and winter bills. The fact should be borne in mind at this period, and with it the other fact that there are fewer hours of

Serious Crossing Accident at Worth

May the village board take note of another serious railway crossing accident, and hasten the railway action in the move for better guarded crossings. On Nov. 6, a man driving a team and wagon was struck by the Wabash 12:45 p. m. Limited. The driver, name not yet ascertained, was very seriously cut and bruised, about the head in particular. A very regrettable mishap, and another crimson caution to careless drivers.

Speeder Gets in Bad at Worth

Our efficient motorcycle police are very strictly enforcing the law as to speeding, insufficient lights and many other important details. About a week ago they pursued a dashing "Valentino" for a half a mile off of the main highway, and finally gave him a court summons at his very doorstep. The charge was based on a lack of lights for night driving. Let us hope our officers keep up their diligence in guarding our safety, and also apprehend the inebriated one who just recently secured lucrative employment at Chicago Ridge, and has been touring the village highroads in a manner highly dangerous to his fellow-citizens as well as to himself.

Suspicious Gents Call at Mokena Telephone Office

Two strangers, roughly dressed, about 30 to 35 years of age, carrying two heavy grips, walked into the local office of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Sunday night, and began asking all kinds of questions about the Mokena Bank, about the local police authorities, whether they were easy or hard in making arrests, about the local jail, and then wanted to place toll calls for some towns in Michigan and Iowa, but finally gave it up, and said they had broken their car, and asked permission to leave their grips at the office, which was granted. The men's faces were red and swollen, and they appeared to have been drinking. After the men had gone, the telephone operators attempted to lift the suit cases, but could not lift them off the floor.

Their suspicions aroused, the operators thought these men might be peddling booze, so they called for Deputies A. C. Schieblich and John Frisch, but neither one answered their telephones. The men returned later, got their grips and left. A car was noticed in the ditch on the road south of Mokena leading toward the Lincoln highway, late in the evening. It was about 7:30 o'clock when the men first appeared at the telephone office.

daylight now than in summer, and will be fewer yet, until the cycle begins its repetition."

A notice to this effect has been sent to customers of the company.

Snappy Bits From Worth

BY A TOWN JIGABOO

Youth's craving for romance is never satisfied. Colorful motion pictures, passionate novels, newspaper triangles are all very fine to watch, and read about, in their way, but the young wish to dramatize them in their own personal actions, as witness one of our own fair residents, Louise Leipstorff, who was secretly wed to her "Apollo Belvidere" in the person of the fortunate Adelbert Voegelé at the church of which the happy groom is a member. May they "live happily ever after."

The Ladies' Aid Society gave a social and supper on Halloween that was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended, and was successful financially as well as socially.

Miss Minnie Leipstorff was the most surprised and honored principal of a party in celebration of her birthday, Oct. 31. A merry evening was spent, dancing, eating and playing "button, button." One member, whose favorite appetizer happened to be catsup, proceeded to gorge himself with the tasty matter in a very colorful fashion, to the intense amusement of all who witnessed this truly extraordinary feat.

In an issue of recent date, John Rust was noted as the former village smithy. The name should have been Christ Rust. Christ and John are brothers. We sincerely beg their pardon for any cases of mistaken identity. Also Mr. B. F. Rolfe was mentioned as B. G. Rolfe, and we respectfully ask his pardon.

The monthly meeting of the village board was held last week. A speaker from Chicago was to deliver a lecture, but was unable to present an appearance because of illness. The preceding month his automobile refused to co-operate, and he did not appear. Next month his dog is expected to be present, as we are all very anxious to hear him.

Row Peterson (when car gives sudden jolts)—"My clutch is rather weak."

Miss Plohm (acidly)—"Yes, I noticed it was."

ISN'T THIS NICE?

"Good morning, Mr. Stone. How is Mrs. Stone and all the little pebbles?"

"Fine, Mr. Wood. How is Mrs. Wood and all the little splinters?"

A Halloween party and supper was given Monday night (Oct. 30) at 6:30, in the Worth M. E. church. The evening passed only too swiftly for all those who attended.

Dr. Enters Coal Business at Orland

Dr. W. R. Schussler received a carload of soft coal last week. So many orders were taken that the Dr. intends to have another carload in the near future.

Your Silent Servant

That is what a Check Book is to the modern housewife or business woman. It serves in the place of keeping a large amount of ready cash on hand with which to pay bills. It serves as a receipt of any financial transaction. It serves as an undeniable record of money paid out. And last but not least, it is handy and a time saver.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

"Was she so awfully pretty, Father?" I could feel the little thrills tingling all over me. Now I was getting a love story!

"She was, my dear. She was very lovely. But it wasn't just that—it was a joyous something that I could not describe. It was as if she were a bird, poised for flight. I know it now for what it was—the very incarnation of the spirit of youth. And she was young. Why, Mary, she was not so many years older than you yourself, now. You aren't sixteen yet. And your mother—I suspect she was too young. If she hadn't been quite so young—"

He stopped, and stared again straight ahead at the dancers—without seeing one of them, I knew. Then he drew a great deep sigh that seemed to come from the very bottom of his boots.

"But it was my fault, my fault, every bit of it," he muttered, still staring straight ahead. "If I hadn't been so thoughtless—As if I could imprison that bright spirit of youth in a great dull cage of conventionality, and not expect it to bruise its wings by fluttering against the bars!"

And right there and then it came to me that Mother said it was her fault, too; and that if only she could live it over again, she'd do differently. And here was Father saying the same thing. And all of a sudden I thought, well, why can't they try it over again, if they both want to, and if each says it was their—no, his, no, hers—well, his and her fault. (How does the thing go? I hate grammar!) But I mean, if she says it's her fault, and he says it's his. That's what I thought, anyway. And I determined right then and there to give them the chance to try again. If speaking would do it.

I looked up at Father. He was still talking half under his breath, his eyes looking straight ahead. He had forgotten all about me. That was plain to be seen. If I'd been a cup of coffee without any coffee in it, he'd have been stirring me. I know he would. He was like that.

"Father, Father!" I had to speak twice, before he heard me. "Do you really mean that you would like to try again?" I asked.

"What? Just the way he had asked and looked at me showed how many miles he'd been away from me. "Try it again, you know—what you said," I reminded him.

"Oh, that!" Such a funny look came to his face, half ashamed, half vexed. "I'm afraid I have been—talking, my dear."

"Yes, but would you?" I persisted. He shook his head; then, with such an oh-that-it-could-be! smile, he said: "Of course—we all wish that we could go back and do it over again—differently. But we never can."

"Yes, but, Father, you can go back, in this case, and so can Mother, 'cause you both want to," I hurried on, almost choking in my anxiety to get it all out quickly. "And Mother said it was her fault. I heard her."

"Her fault?" I could see that Father did not quite understand, even yet.

"Yes, yes, just as you said it was yours—about all those things at the first, you know—when she was a spirit of youth beating against the bars."

Father turned square around and faced me. "Mary, what are you talking about?" he asked then. And I'd have been scared of his voice if it hadn't been for the great light that was shining in his eyes.

But I looked into his eyes, and wasn't scared; and I told him everything, every single thing—all about how Mother had cried over the little blue dress that day in the trunk-room, and how she had shown the tarnished lace and said that she had tarnished the happiness of him and of herself and of me; and that that was all her fault; that she was thoughtless and willful and exacting and a spoiled child; and, oh, if she could only try it over again, how differently she would do! And there was a lot more. I told everything—everything I could remember. Some way, I didn't believe that Mother would mind now, after what Father had said. And I just knew she wouldn't mind if she could see the look in Father's eyes as I talked.

He didn't interrupt me—not long interruptions. He did speak out a quick little word now and then, at some of the parts; and once I know I saw him wipe a tear from his eyes. After that he put up his hand and sat with his eyes covered all the rest of the time I was talking. And he didn't take it down till I said:

"And so, Father, that's why I told you; 'cause it seemed to me if you wanted to try again, and she wanted to try again, why can't you do it? Oh, Father, think how perfectly lovely it would be if you did, and if it worked! Why, I wouldn't care whether I was Mary or Marie, or what I was. I'd have you and Mother both together, and, oh, how I should love it!"

It was here that Father's arm came out and slipped around me in a great big hug.

"Bless your heart! But, Mary, my dear, how are we going to—bring this about?" Then is when my second great idea came to me.

"Oh, Father!" I cried, "couldn't you come courting her again—calls and flowers and candy, and all the rest? Oh, Father, couldn't you? Why, Father, of course you could!"

This last I added in my most persuasive voice, for I could see the "no" on his face even before he began to shake his head.

"I'm afraid not, my dear," he said, then. "It would take more than a flower or a bonbon to win your mother back now, I fear."

"But you could try," I urged. He shook his head again.

"She wouldn't see me—if I called, my dear," he answered.

He sighed as he said it, and I sighed, too. And for a minute I didn't say anything. Of course, if she wouldn't see him—

Then another idea came to me. "But, Father, if she would see you—I mean, if you got a chance, you would tell her what you told me just now; about its being your fault, I mean, and the spirit of youth beating against the bars, and all that. You would, wouldn't you?"

He didn't say anything, not anything, for such a long time I thought he hadn't heard me. Then, with a queer, quick drawing in of his breath, he said:

"I think—little girl—if—if I ever got the chance I would say—a great deal more than I said to you tonight."

"Good!" I just crowed the word, and I think I clapped my hands; but right away I straightened up and was very fine and dignified, for I saw Aunt Hattie looking at me from across the room, as I said:

"Very good, then. You shall have the chance."

He turned and smiled a little, but he shook his head.

"Thank you, child; but I don't think you know quite what you're promising," he said.

"Yes, I do."

Then I told him my idea. At first he said no, and it couldn't be, and he was very sure she wouldn't see him, even if he called. But I said she would if he would do exactly as I said. And I told him my plan. And after a time and quite a lot of talk, he said he would agree to it.

And this morning we did it.

At exactly ten o'clock he came up the steps of the house here, but he didn't ring the bell. I had told him not to do that, and I was on the watch for him. I knew that at ten o'clock Grandfather would be gone, Aunt Hattie probably downtown shopping, and Lester out with his governess. I wasn't so sure of Mother, but I knew it was Saturday, and I believed I could manage somehow to keep her here with me, so that everything would be all right there.

I did it, and five minutes before ten she was sitting quietly sewing in her own room. Then I went downstairs to watch for Father.

He came just on the dot, and I let him in and took him into the library. Then I went upstairs and told Mother there was some one downstairs who wanted to see her.

And she said, how funny, and wasn't there any name, and where was the maid. But I didn't seem to hear. I had gone into my room in quite a hurry, as if I had forgotten something I wanted to do there. But, of course, I didn't do a thing—except to make sure that she went downstairs to the library.

They're there now together. And he's been here a whole hour already. Seems as if he ought to say something in that length of time!

After I was sure Mother was down, I took out this, and began to write in it. And I've been writing ever since.

But, oh, I do so wonder what's going on down there. I'm so excited over—

ONE WEEK LATER

At just that minute Mother came in to the room. I wish you could have seen her. My stars, but she looked pretty!—with her shining eyes and the lovely pink in her cheeks. And young! Honestly, I believe she looked younger than I did that minute.

She just came and put her arms around me and kissed me. And I saw then that her eyes were all misty with tears. She didn't say a word, hardly, only that Father wanted to see me, and I was to go right down.

And I went. I thought, of course, that she was coming, too. But she didn't. And when I got down the stairs I found I was all alone; but I went right on into the library, and there was Father waiting for me.

He didn't say much, either, at first; but just like Mother he put his arms around me and kissed me, and held me there. Then, very soon, he began to talk; and, oh, he said such beautiful things—such tender, lovely, sacred things; too sacred even to write down here. Then he kissed me again and went away.

But he came back the next day, and he's been here some part of every day since. And, oh, what a wonderful week it has been!

They're going to be married. It's tomorrow. They'd have been married right away at the first, only they had to wait—something about licenses and a five-day notice, Mother said. Father fussed and fumed, and wanted to try for a special dispensation, or something; but Mother laughed, and said certainly not, and that she guessed it was just as well, for she positively had to have a few things; and he needn't think he could walk right in like that on a body and expect her to get married at a moment's notice. But she didn't mean it. I know she didn't; for when Father reproached her, she laughed softly, and called him an old goose, and said, yes, of course, she'd have married him in two minutes if it hadn't been for the five-day notice, no matter whether she ever had a new dress or not.

And that's the way it is with them all the time. Too funny, too lovely together for anything. (Aunt Hattie says they're too silly for anything; but nobody minds Aunt Hattie.)

And, as I said before, it is all perfectly wonderful.

So it's all settled, and they're going right away on this trip and call it a wedding trip. And, of course, Grandfather had to get off his joke about how he thought it was a pretty dangerous business; and to see that this honeymoon didn't go into an eclipse while they were watching the other one. But nobody minds Grandfather.

I'm to stay here and finish school. Then, in the spring, when Father and Mother come back, we are all to go to Andersonville and begin to live in the old house again.

Won't it be lovely? It just seems too good to be true. Why, I don't care a bit now whether I'm Mary or Marie. But, then, nobody else does, either. In fact, both of them call me the whole name now, Mary Marie. I don't think they ever said they would. They just began to do it. That's all.

How about this being a love story now? Oh, I'm so excited!

CHAPTER IX.

Which Is the Test.

ANDERSONVILLE. TWELVE YEARS LATER

Twelve years—yes. And I'm twenty-eight years old. Pretty old, little Mary Marie of the long ago would think. And, well, perhaps today I feel just as old as she would put it.

I came up into the attic this morning to pack away some things I shall no longer need, now that I am going to leave Jerry. (Jerry is my husband.) And in the bottom of my little trunk I found this manuscript. I had forgotten that such a thing existed; but with its laboriously written pages before me, it all came back to me; and I began to read; here a sentence; there a paragraph; somewhere else a page. Then, with a little half laugh and a half sob, I carried it to an old rocking chair by the cobwebby dormer window, and settled myself to read it straight through.

And I have read it. Poor little Mary Marie! Dear little Mary Marie! To meet you like this to share with you your joys and sorrows, hopes and despairs, of those years, long ago, is like sitting hand in hand on a sofa with a childhood's friend, each listening to an eager "And do you remember?" falling constantly from delighted lips that cannot seem to talk fast enough.

By the Plimsoll line is meant the mark on a ship, which, by the British merchant shipping act of 1876, forced through parliament by Samuel Plimsoll, must be visible above water, thus preventing overloading.

FUR AND FUR FABRICS; CHARMING AFTERNOON GOWNS

WINTER is just round the corner and the subject of coats for winter wear is up for discussion, and must be settled. It is a business requiring thought, since the fall brought in notable changes in styles and many novel fabrics, each influencing the other. There is so great a variety in styles that the quest of a winter coat is more than interesting—it is fascinating. First there is the long range of fabrics to consider, from the soft, smooth-long shawl collar and finishes the loose, flaring sleeves.

Of course those darlings of the gods, the successful movie stars, can have anything they want to wear and some of them know how to make the most of this rare privilege. Every woman would like to be in a like position, especially when she goes out in pursuit of that best beloved of all her belongings, the afternoon gown. Mabel Normand's amiable face looks

Rare Find in English Church.

After three centuries of concealment behind plaster and rubbish, the remains of a Fourteenth century stained-glass window have been discovered at Chelsea (England) Old church. The old glass, which is of immense value, was found between layers of soft plaster behind a mass of old bricks. In one window only a fragment of a border was found; but in the other a panel two feet by two was brought to light. The panel is nearly complete, the head of the figure—apparently that of St. Lawrence or St. Stephen—is missing. The glass seems to be of a date not later than the middle of the Fourteenth century. With the exception of Westminster abbey, there is no London church with its own glass of so early a date.

American Miners Outdig Russians.

American coal miners, thrown out of work by the five months' strike in the United States, have been drifting into the pits of the Donetz basin in Russia.

The Bolshevik government at Moscow announced the other day that 32 Americans in the Yusoviki mine had established a record by digging in one day two and one-half times as much coal as did the same number of Russian miners. It is understood that more American miners are on their way to Russia.

Selfish Parent.

He was blonde and blue-eyed and seven years old at most, this youngster, who was complaining about the way his father treated him.

"Oh, gosh, I hate to go home. My father's so selfish. You can't guess how selfish my father is."

"Selfish?" said an old man, all tenderness in his tone.

"Yes, selfish," said the lad. "Why, he wouldn't ever think of lending me his washrag or his toothbrush. Not ever."

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 12

JESUS THE GREAT TEACHER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:20-49.
GOLDEN TEXT—As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.—Luke 6:31.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 5:1-18; John 3:2; 6:68; 7:46; Col. 2:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Us to Love Everybody.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Living by the Golden Rule.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Golden Rule in Everyday Life.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Us How to Live Together.

I. Characteristics of the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 20-26).

Only those who are subjects of the Kingdom know what blessedness is. The spiritual experience of the subjects of the Kingdom are marked by the following steps:

1. Poverty of Spirit (v. 20). This means consciousness of one's lost condition and worthlessness. It is spiritual bankruptcy. It means to come to the end of self and to show sorrow for sins.

2. Hunger for Righteousness (v. 21). The one who has come to know his poverty desires the true righteousness of Christ.

3. Weeping Because of His Lack (v. 21). This is the godly sorrow which worketh repentance (II Cor. 7:10). Those who thus sorrow are assured that they shall laugh.

4. Treatment Which the Subjects of the Kingdom May Expect (vv. 22, 23). When the subjects of the Kingdom become like the King they incite the hatred, contempt and persecution of the world. Those who pass through this for Christ's sake should rejoice, for there is great reward laid up for them.

II. The Governing Principles of the Kingdom (vv. 27-38).

1. Love Your Enemies (v. 27). To love friends is easy, but to love enemies is only possible to those who have been made partakers of the divine nature.

2. Do Good to Those Who Hate You (v. 27). Love acts according to its own nature. Enmity only stimulates love to act in harmony with its own laws.

3. Bless Them That Curse You (v. 28). Injury by words is a great evil, but it is not to be met with evil.

4. Pray for Them Which Despitefully Use You (v. 28). Christ's own example is the best commentary on this precept (Luke 23:34; cf. Acts 7:60).

5. Patiently Endure Wrong and Injury (v. 29). The Christian is not to bristle up in defense of his rights, but rather to suffer insult, injury and even loss. This should not be pressed so far that evil-doers can go unchecked. It expresses the law which should govern individual action.

6. Give to Every One That Askest (v. 30). This does not necessarily mean that the thing asked for should be given. We should give to every one that asketh, but not necessarily the thing asked for.

7. Do as You Wish to Be Done By (v. 31). This is called the "Golden Rule." If men were to live by this rule the labor problem would be solved. An end would be put to war. International relations would be peacefully adjusted and all profiting in business would end.

8. Be Merciful (v. 36). The mercy of the Heavenly Father is the grand example.

9. Censorious Judgment Condemned (v. 37). We should not seek out the evil in others for our satisfaction.

10. Danger of Following False Teachers (v. 39). The one who does not know God and the way to heaven will lead others to ruin. Happily, we have the Scriptures, and the Holy Spirit is ready to make their meaning known, so there is no excuse.

11. Those Who Reprove Others Should Strive to Live Blameless Lives (vv. 41-46). It is easy to see others' faults, but hard to see our own.

12. The Sin of Profession Without Fruits (v. 46). The one who professes a life and fellowship with God should practice the principles which reveal the nature of God.

III. The Judgment to Be Applied to the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 47-49).

1. The one who hears and does the sayings of Christ the King shall be as secure as the house built upon the solid rock. The storms of the judgment cannot destroy him, for the Rock of Ages is immovable.

2. The one who hears and does not the sayings of Christ shall be overwhelmed in the judgment and go down to utter ruin and destruction.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

PROBABLY DIDN'T GET LOAN

Would-Be Borrower Freed His Mind, but Remark Poured No Oil on Troubled Waters.

The story is told of a banker who suffered the loss of one eye and had a glass substitute made. The one of eye was wonderfully fashioned, so much so that the wearer was satisfied no one could tell it from a real organ. A day or so after he began wearing it a customer of the bank sought a loan, but the banker was not quite satisfied with the collateral. After much persuasion from the would-be borrower, the banker said:

"I will make you a sporting proposition. If you can tell which of my eyes is glass, I will make you the loan."

"That's easy," replied the other. "It's your left eye."

"How do you know?" asked the banker.

"It is the more sympathetic of the two," responded the borrower.—Wall Street Journal.

IF TRUTH WERE INSISTED ON

Some of the Remarks That Would Be Made About That Proudly Displayed Photograph.

"This isn't a very good picture of you, Helen. You don't usually look so wide awake."

"Now this picture's just a person might be led to think you're really good-looking, to judge from this."

"If you had held that pose much longer you'd have had a nervous breakdown. That photographer should have known better."

"The man who took this picture ought to build up a heavy business. He certainly knows how to make age disappear, doesn't he?"

"Why do you always have your picture taken in profile? You've got a very ordinary nose, to say the least."

"Too bad you don't smile like this otherwise."

"Take it away!"—New York Sun.

Plan Wouldn't Work.

A celebrated wine merchant received a letter which ran: "Sir, I have not a centime to my name, but I adore champagne. Be good enough to send me a case of your delicious nectar. With its help I hope to forget my wretched poverty."

He replied by return mail: "Sir, the means wherewith you propose to forget your poverty will not avail. The incessant and persistent presentation of my account would remind you every moment of your sad condition."—Boston Transcript.

'PEP' IN SCHOOL PLAYGROUND

Authority Makes Plea for Games That Are Characterized by Energy and Vim.

"Jellyfish gymnastics, or stupid, silly games, played half-heartedly, have little place in the proper physical development of the growing child," declared Dr. E. Blanche Sterling, acting assistant surgeon, United States public health service, in commenting on the health of school children. In planning exercise with a view to the promotion of good posture, she suggests they should be simple and vigorous and full of energy and vim.

The posture of school children cannot, however, be said to depend chiefly on any one condition, she holds. Defective vision, adenoids and bad tonsils tend to have a bad effect on the child's posture. Where hygienic conditions in a school are not the best there is an increase of poor posture. Good nutrition is a contributing factor to good posture, but by no means an indispensable condition. Condition of the teeth, she claims, has no effect. Doctor Sterling's findings are based on a study of three elementary schools at Bedford, Ind.

Are you among these thousands?

THOUSANDS of people keep on trying, year after year, to build health from food that has been robbed of certain elements required for perfect nutrition.

If your food doesn't contain the mineral properties that go to build up nerve, tooth and bone structure, there is no other means by which you can get these vital elements.

This is one reason why so many well-informed people eat Grape-Nuts

—the food that enriches the blood, and builds sound, healthy bodies.

Grape-Nuts is made from whole wheat flour and malted barley—baked for 20 hours, which develops the natural richness of the grains and makes for ready digestibility.

And Grape-Nuts is perfectly delicious—served with milk or cream, or made into an appetizing pudding for dinner.

The "Lantern Cooler's" Profession.
Among the theatrical agencies where talent is to be employed for all occasions a new calling is that of "lantern cooler." What is meant is that at some small movie shows a variety turn is put on between the reels whilst the projector recovers from a passionate six-reel film.

Sun Worshiped in Early Times.
Centuries ago the sun was worshiped by practically every race on the face of the earth. Babylonians, ancient Persians and Armenians, Assyrians, Ammonites, Ethiopians, Arabians and several others had their own sun gods.

First Steam Transatlantic Trips.
The American vessel Savannah crossed the Atlantic from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool in 1819 in 29 days 11 hours. The trip was made partly under steam but mainly by sail. In 1833 the Royal William, of 830 tons, built in Canada, made the first transatlantic voyage entirely under steam. His Honesty Assured.

To a tramp who wanted to earn a bite to eat a woman said: "If I thought you were honest I'd let you go to the chicken house and gather the eggs." "Lady," he replied with dignity, "I was manager at a bathhouse for 15 years, and never took a bath."—Bos. 1769 and 1783.

All Snakes Not Foes of Mankind.
When man meets snake he makes no distinction between friend and foe. While the rattler and the moccasin are deadly foes, the big king snake is a friendly, nonpoisonous reptile which preys upon rodents—enemies of man.

Submarine Cable "Slack."
A submarine cable weighs from two to three tons a mile, and in manufacturing it 10 per cent allowance is made for "slack." That is, a cable made to span 2,000 miles of ocean is made 2,200 miles long.

News comes from Chicago that Miss Helen McCorkle, formerly a teacher of Orland school, was married Saturday evening, Nov. 4.

CHICAGO RIDGE

The marriage of Anna Polchow and Paul Brueggerman occurred Saturday, October 28, at the Oak Lawn Lutheran church. The bridesmaids were Frieda Polchow, who wore a pink taffeta gown; Alma Brueggerman, arrayed in a lavender taffeta gown, and Margaret Vogel, dressed in blue taffeta. The flower girl, Helen Eisler, a niece of the bride, wore a yellow taffeta gown. The boy attendants were Otto Duskwitz, Cecil Cridge and Peter Kretzen.

The wedding took place at 8 o'clock. Supper was served from 6:30 to 8 o'clock. The bride and groom received many beautiful presents, and many friends of the happy newlyweds extend best wishes for their future happiness.

Miss Dorothy Meyers has a new Ford Sedan. Charles Polchow, Jr. also has a new Ford Sedan.

Halloween was a wild night for both the boys and girls of Chicago Ridge. The village hall was decorated with wagons, a cart being placed on the roof. The youngsters say they hate to have to wait a year for the return of October 31.

Alma Bfueggerman, sister Minnie and cousin Leona Korth of Appleton, Wis., spent the week at the home of the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Brueggerman.

The dance given at Liberty hall Saturday evening was quite a success. So bring your friends to the dances in Chicago Ridge, and you'll not be sorry if you do.

The Chicago Ridge Sunday school gave a bazaar last Saturday from 2 till 9 p. m. Many beautiful things were sold, and supper was served. They also had a little program for the finish.

The Orland Park Club gave a Halloween party for its members October 31st. The evening was spent in dancing. The music was furnished with a concertina, and a light lunch was served at the close of the party. All enjoyed themselves with the exception of a few stunts being played on some.

Not Hard to Determine.

There are usually two viewpoints of value of work—that of the worker and that of the employer. The one may overestimate as much as the other underestimates. Approximate value may lie between them, and is easily determined when the laborer is worthy of his hire.—Grit.

Versatile Cacao Tree.

The cacao tree is an evergreen and bears fruit and flowers all the year round, but the usual times for gathering the fruit are June and December. Chocolate is made from the seed or beans. When oil is extracted it makes cocoa butter, and the residue is ground and marketed as cocoa.

Early Loaf Sugar.

The art of making loaf sugar was introduced by a Venetian in the fifteenth century, who received a large reward for his discovery. The loaf sugar of other days was not in the convenient form of cubes as we have it now, but was like a round loaf of bread and was some trouble to cut.

Origin of "Hustings."
Husting was the name of an ancient court held in the city of London. In its present sense the word denotes the place where members of parliament were nominated before the ballot act of 1872 rejected the form of nominating openly. From this it has come to be applied to any electioneering platform.

The Illinois Traction system may absorb the Aurora, Plainfield & Joliet Electric line. The city council at Plainfield was informed that the deal might go through if the buying company was exempted from paying assessments by Plainfield. Representatives of the traction system are said to have been advised that there could be no change in the position of the city, no matter which company was owner.

The Thomas Cosener will case came to an abrupt end at Virginia when the litigants agreed to a settlement out of court. The testator was a bachelor and made his home prior to his death with the widow of his brother. To her three sons he left his fortune of $50,000. Mrs. A. C. Mains, a sister, and other relatives ignored in the will filed suit to have the document set aside.

Tearful repentance for his "wild ways" and promises by Elwood P. Corbit, seventy years old, wealthy insurance broker, that no woman other than his wife would henceforth occupy his thoughts, resulted in a reconciliation between him and Mrs. Frances Lowe Corbit, eighty-eight years old, at Chicago, it was learned with the dismissal of the suit for divorce recently filed by Mrs. Corbit.

J. E. Thompson, well-known Hereford breeder of Martinsville, will exhibit ten head of Herefords at the American Royal Live Stock show to be held at Kansas City, Mo., in the new half-million dollar Royal building, November 18-25. Thompson has been exhibiting at state fairs and the leading American shows for five years. The show cattle which he will take to Kansas City have won prizes this year at the Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska State fairs. Mr. Thompson's entries from Illinois are part of the 600 head of Herefords which will make the 1922 Royal Hereford show "the greatest exhibition of Herefords ever assembled in an American arena," according to an announcement made by the American Hereford association after tabulation of the entries. Sixty breeders from fifteen states will participate.

Work has been started on a Catholic church, the first to be established in Mount Carroll. It is expected the edifice will be ready for occupancy in about four months.

Truckloads of fish are now being rescued from back waters which resulted from the floods of last spring. The state fish and game department crews are at work at various places from Galena to Cairo. At Beardstown from four to six truckloads a day, it is said, are being hauled to the Illinois river from the rapidly drying ponds left by floods.

Nokomis has voted a $35,000 bond issue for a new water system. The improvement was recommended by the state department of public health.

Prohibition workers at Paris watched 200 gallons of wine and whiskey poured into the gutter in front of the county jail by Sheriff Sizemore and his deputies, who had seized the liquor during the last three months.

Moline has been promised a new union station, which will be constructed by the Rock Island railroad. Plans will be given the final revision, so that ground can be broken during the present month and the building completed early next spring.

Tabulation of bids in the state's new 125-mile paving program indicate a new low level in cost has been reached. Early estimates were that the cost would average $28,000 a mile. The tabulators at Springfield struck an average and found the cost per mile would not exceed $25,000.

Charged with embezzling more than $3,000 from the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad companies and the American Railway Express company, which employed him at Oregon as agent, F. H. Ford was arrested by Sheriff Banning.

Twenty-one mail pouches, containing first class, registered and parcel post mail, was cut open in the Illinois Central railroad baggage room at DuQuoin and rifled. The mail was left there during the night and when the post office wagon called for it the clerk found a man cutting away at one of the pouches. He escaped. Postal inspectors are at work on the case.

The Illinois Sunday School association has planned three institutes to be held at Freeport, Quincy and Centralia, for the purpose of giving instruction to Sunday school workers, according to announcement of George N. Brunic, general secretary at Springfield. The meetings will be held in Freeport November 14 and 15; Quincy, November 21 and 22; Centralia, November 23 and 24.

A forecast that 1922 will be "the healthiest year on record" in Illinois is made by the state department of public health in "A Record of Progress" bulletin issued at Springfield. According to mortality statistics compiled by the department for 1921 the general death rate for each 1,000 population for that year was 11.1, compared with an average of 13.6 for the preceding five years.

George H. Fox of Sycamore was re-elected president of the Illinois Holstein-Friesian association at its annual meeting in Dixon. Other officers chosen by the breeders of the pure-bred cattle were: Vice presidents, William Fitch of Aurora, H. W. Allyn of Byron, Harry Wood of Delevan, W. E. Yapp of Urbana and Judge Lindley of Greenville. The secretary-treasurer will be appointed by the president and vice presidents.

While climatic conditions last week were ideal for farm work, rains are needed extensively for late-sown fall grain and pastures and to replenish the supply of stock water, according to the weekly crop report for Illinois issued by A. J. Surratt, government agricultural statistician at Springfield. Farm work has progressed rapidly except where it is somewhat dry for plowing.

The radio-broadcasting station is located in the electrical laboratory of the University of Illinois at Urbana. The programs are given under the direction of the director of publicity, to whom letters of inquiry should be addressed. During the present college year the station broadcasts on Monday and Thursday nights of each week. Broadcasting begins promptly at 8:30 p. m., central standard time, and continues until 9:15 or 9:30 p. m., with an intermission from 8:55 to 9:05 p. m.

There are three conditions necessary to success with plants in the home—sufficient light, proper temperature and moisture, according to James Hutchinson of the University of Illinois at Urbana. "Light conditions determine largely the variety of plants that may be grown," Mr. Hutchinson says. "Flowering plants, as a rule, require sunshine, some may get along with a strong diffused light. Palms and ferns can be successfully grown in shaded rooms. This is the reason we find ferns in most dwellings, but even the accommodating fern is not happy when the temperature and moisture conditions are not right."

Pointing out that often many small streams on farms are wasting their energy, R. C. Kelleher of the department of farm mechanics of the University of Illinois at Urbana, stated that in some instances these streams, if properly harnessed, could be made to light and farm buildings, pump water or do other useful things. "The first requirement in a water power project is that there be flowing or falling water," said Mr. Kelleher. "The amount of power that is available varies; first, with the amount of water flowing, and second, with the amount of fall. It requires about one cubic foot of water per second, falling through a height of ten feet, to make available one theoretical horse power."

Some of the largest interior decorating firms in the United States are in competition for the contract to decorate the interior of the new Centennial building at Springfield, according to State Architect Martin.

The following officers were elected at the closing session at Paris of the Aesculapian society of the Wabash valley: President, Dr. C. E. Wilkins, Danville; vice president, Dr. M. R. Combs, Terre Haute, Ind.; secretary-treasurer, H. N. Rafferty, Robinson, Ill. The semi-annual meeting will be held next May in Mattoon.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

AVOID THE RUTS

IF YOU would surmount obstacles, travel the great highway which takes to sure success, and write your name in lofty places, where future generations may see, you must be careful as you go to avoid the ruts.

All about you are numerous mines and pits, seemingly waiting to engulf you, or put an air-brake upon your progress when your safe passage seems assured.

They are hidden in a thousand places, many of them within your own heart, which, if you would frequently examine with an impartial eye, you would discover to be the most threatening and dangerous of all.

A bad habit unconsciously formed through months, and possibly years of use, may finally wreck your fondest ambition upon the very threshold of success, and land you helpless on your back among the briars and brambles.

You may be passably well educated, you may have good looks, the manners of a Chesterfield, wear fine clothes and even be capable of smiling and counterfeiting the grand air of kings, but if you have become habituated to ugly moods, sudden bursts of anger in which you spout poisonous words, you will find as the passing years leave their imprint upon you, that you are in a terrible rut, down in the sticky mire, from which no one can possibly pull you except yourself.

And at this period of your life you will awaken to the sad truth that you are a little bit shaky on your feet, lack youthful imagination and courage, and, worst of all, have lost your faith, the most helpful asset a man or woman can possibly possess, in spite of the opinions of the skeptical and those thoughtless individuals who openly deride its potential power.

To travel the devious ways of life without faith, is like trying to sail a ship without a rudder, or ride an untamed bronco without a bridle.

You may smile at such danger when in company, but when you are alone you may be likely to become supremely serious, as millions of others have done before you, when they found it was too late.

There is no possibility of writing your name on the eternal skies while you remain in the ruts, which have threatened the downfall of man or woman since the sorrowful day Eve bit into the fatal apple, but if you walk in the light and accept wise counsel, nothing but death can keep you from the heights.

SCHOOL DAYS

ROMANCE OF WORDS

"ABRACADABRA"

TO DISCOVER the genesis of this term, formerly used in incantations and now utilized as a symbol of "gibberish," one has to go back to the Hebrew words signifying Father, Son and Holy Spirit—Ab, Ben, Rauch Acadosh. The initials of these words give "Abra," the syllables which are twice repeated in the supposedly ritualistic invocation.

The earliest known occurrence of the word is in a poem written in the Second century by Q. Serenus Sammonicus, but it was in comparatively recent times that the term gained fame on account of its supposedly mystical powers of healing, particularly when written in the triangular form:

ABRACADABRA
A B R A C A D A B R
A B R A C A D A B
A B R A C A D A
A B R A C A D
A B R A C A
A B R A C
A B R A
A B R
A

According to the popular superstition, the paper upon which these letters were written was to be folded so as to conceal the writing, sewed up with white thread and worn around the neck, thus protecting its wearer against fever and ague.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

WIN, BUT ENJOY GAME

GENTLEMEN who play golf will tell you that the man who tries too hard, never does very well at it. Incidentally, he never gets any fun out of the game.

There are many parallels between golf and life, which is doubtless the reason that so many people are devoted to it.

Golf, of course, is a game, and only a game. Yet there are many of its followers who can see only the advantage of winning, and who come in sour and ill tempered if they lose.

Others, while they try to win, get just as much fun out of it if they don't. And they never stamp on their clubs or throw them away, or swear at the caddies.

It is very important to win in anything. But it is more important to get your allowance of fun out of it as you go along.

Sitting wheezily in any rich man's club you will find old gentlemen who wanted to win more than anything else, and who did win fortunes, but lost their health and their happiness in the effort. And with all their money, you can set them down as losers.

There is good sportsmanship in all human effort. There are things the good sportsman will not do, even to win. One of them is cheating, another is becoming so absorbed in the pursuit of victory that he forgets everything else as he goes along.

John Burroughs, who probably never had more than the necessities of life in all his existence, got full measure of enjoyment that was denied to many who made a thousand times as much money. Incidentally, he was a very successful man, for he added to the sum of human knowledge.

Win if you can. Get a fortune if you can. Money means independence, and the ability to do good in the world.

But never forget that there is enjoyment as well as trouble in life, and that if you are not too intent on winning what the world calls success, you will be happier as you go along, and stand just as good a chance of making your life worth while, and the world better off because you lived in it.

Mother's Cook Book

I toil at homely tasks the whole day through;

The food, the linen and the household needs,
And all the little things that mothers do,
And still am worried by unfinished deeds.

Then evening comes, the quiet, velvet eve;
I gather to my breast my baby son,
And tenderly his small moist fingers weave
A charm on all that garish day has done.

The toil, the fret, the subtle discontent,
He covers with a cobweb bright with pearls;
And sickness is perfumed by the scent
And weariness clinging of his warm brown curls.
He gazes at me, dreamy, filmy-eyed,
And every homely task is glorified.
—Eleanore M. Jewett.

A FEW DESSERTS

A SIMPLE sweet for a finish to the dinner is missed if omitted. A few stuffed dates, a plate of cookies with a bit of fruit, or fresh fruit itself, is easy to prepare and usually available. For desserts which are more elaborate and take time to concoct the following will be suggestive:

Chocolate Crumb Pudding.

Take one cupful of cake and bread crumbs mixed, add one and one-half cupfuls of milk, one and one-half squares of unsweetened chocolate and three-fourths of a cupful of sugar. Cook in a double boiler until a smooth paste is formed. To three well-beaten egg yolks add one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt; stir and cook until it thickens. Add vanilla and put into a greased pudding dish. Bake in a moderate oven 25 minutes. When slightly cool, spread with a meringue made with the three egg whites and one-half cupful of powdered sugar; replace in the oven until the meringue is a light brown. Chill before serving.

LOUIS AND RUTH

By Will M. Maupin

I'VE GOT a brand new daughter now
And proud I am of her;
Although it rather seems, somehow,
As if she really were
A sign that I am growing old,
That many years have sped;
That oft the bells dead years have tolled—
The "Biggest Boy" has wed.

It seems that only yesterday
I bound his wounded toe
With yarn in the old-fashioned way—
'Twas really years ago!
It seems but just a day or two
Since off to school he ran;
But "Biggest Boy" now looms to view
As a new married man.

Ge-e whizz! How tempus fugit by—
I've got a daughter-in-law!
It seems so short a time since I
Was playing "Boston taw";
So brief a time since, free and glad,
I'd gaily romp and run—
And now to think that I'm the Dad
Of a big married son!

Well, I admit my shadow turns
And points the eastward way;
That memory's incense sweetly burns
To many a yesterday.
But, praise the Lord, although the gray
In my hair has a start,
I can with truth stand up and say
—I'm keeping young of heart.

So, daughter, you've a welcome here
Like blooming flowers of May;
To us you'll be both near and dear
Forever and a day.
But I'll admit it seems quite queer,
When all is done and said,
That I've a brand new daughter here
'Cause "Biggest Boy" is wed.

Alone Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Jasper, Minn. — "I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took it because I was having such pains in my stomach and through my back that I could not do my work. I had tried other medicines, but none did me the good that your Vegetable Compound did. Now I am able to do all my work alone while before I had my daughter staying at home to do it. I have told a number of friends what it has done for me and give you permission to use my letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. JESSE PETERSEN, Route 1, Jasper, Minn.

There is no better reason for your trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound than this—it has helped other women. So if you suffer from displacements, irregularities, backache, nervousness or are passing through the Change of Life remember this splendid medicine. What it did for Mrs. Petersen it may do for you.

The Vegetable Compound stands upon a foundation of nearly fifty years of service.

Bobby's Wish.

"Oh dear!" grumbled Bobby when ordered to get busy with the soap. "I just wish I was a clock."

"Why do you wish that?" his mother asked.

"Cause I wouldn't have to wash my face and hands then," explained the youngster.—Boston Evening Transcript.

FURTHER ADVICE ON PUTTING UP ANTENNA

Two Types of Counterpoise Described—Energy Losses Minimized by Proper Location.

It has been stated in previous articles that an antenna system consists of a so-called aerial and a ground. In certain forms the ground is also known as a counterpoise.

Sometimes a counterpoise is made up in a form similar to the aerial and is suspended beneath it. To a certain extent this is true of the counterpoise used on airplanes, which is made up of all the metal parts of the plane.

When the earth is dry or rocky, and consequently a poor conductor of electricity, a counterpoise consisting of a network of wires is laid on the ground and directly underneath the horizontal part of the antenna. If it is desired to install this form of counterpoise the metallic surface of the counterpoise must be at least equal to that of antenna, and for efficient operation, should even be greater than the antenna surface. Also the resistance of the counterpoise should be made as low as possible in order to eliminate the losses that otherwise would take place in it. A counterpoise of the form described is illustrated in Figure 14.

When the ground underneath an antenna is a good conductor, that is to say, is soft and moist, the earth itself experiment it has been found that the received energy is the same for a single wire as for a multi-wire antenna, unless the spacing between the wires is very great. The greatest advantage of a single-wire antenna is mechanical. It is much simpler to erect, due to the absence of spreaders, and it will withstand severe storms which would tear down a multi-wire antenna with the same supports.

Not all the energy induced in a receiving antenna by the wave produced by the transmitting station is useful. Part of the energy is reradiated, part is lost due to the resistance of the antenna conductors, part is lost due to the eddy currents produced in neighboring non-conducting material, and part is lost by leakage around the antenna insulators. All of these losses can be reduced to a minimum by properly locating and erecting an antenna.

The losses due to eddy currents can be reduced by erecting the antenna so that it will not be near any objects such as houses, barns, trees, etc. The resistance loss can be reduced by using a heavy conductor of low high-frequency resistance, such as stranded phosphor bronze cable. Good, long insulators with plenty of surface creepage distance will minimize insulator leakage. Just as much care should be taken in bringing in the lead-in as in erecting the antenna. Don't run the lead-in close to a wall for any great distance.

It is always desirable to have an antenna just as high as possible, not only to receive the maximum amount of energy, but also to prevent shielding. If an antenna is erected on a site surrounded by high buildings containing conducting material, the buildings will shield the antenna electrically. That is, the energy is absorbed by the buildings and little is left for the antenna. Sometimes an antenna is as often used as a counterpoise and connection is made with it by means of a number of copper plates or an interconnected network of wires, sunk into the ground at various places within the area underneath the antenna. These buried conductors should have a low resistance and should be put deep enough so that the earth around them is permanently moist. See Figure 15 for a counterpoise of this type.

The Beverage antenna is one of the most recent additions to the art of radio reception. It has the characteristics of a counterpoise, it was used at Ardrossan, Scotland, last December, when 28 amateurs succeeded in bridging the Atlantic by radio.

The Beverage antenna is adapted to the reception of signals on a single predetermined wave length. It consists of one wire supported on 19 to 12-foot posts, this wire having a length of either one or two even wave lengths. If designed for 200-meter reception, the wire will be either 5,500 or 1,300 feet long.

Unlike the customary form of antenna, this wire is grounded at both ends. At the far end, away from the receiver, it is grounded through a non-inductive resistance of from 250 to 400 ohms, and at the receiving end through a variable inductance. In the case of the receiver used at Ardrossan, five stages of radio frequency amplification, a regenerative detector and two stages of audio frequency amplification were used.

As stated above, the Beverage antenna is designed for reception of a single wave length, depending on the length of the antenna wire. If other wave lengths are to be received, the length of the wire must be changed. It has been found that the signal strength using 1,100 feet of wire, 12 feet above the ground, is approximately the same as would be heard with a single vertical antenna wire, 130 feet in height. However, the Beverage antenna is highly directional, and on account of this fact, interference from directions other than those from which one wishes to receive is reduced to a minimum. Also, due to the short distance from the ground, static and atmospheric disturbances are almost eliminated.

In general, it may be said that the Beverage antenna is extremely well adapted for the long distance reception of signals from a given station whose transmitting wave length is known.

Often by erecting an elaborate antenna system, the amateur does not get as good results as would be obtained from a simple, well-located one. The function of an antenna is to cut the electro-magnetic and electro-static components of the field radiated by the transmitter, and have induced in it an electro-motive force which will cause a current to flow in the antenna circuit.

The capacity and inductance of the receiving antenna plus a small amount of lumped inductance in the station to furnish a drop to operate the receiving set directly or a magnetic field to transfer energy to a second oscillating circuit, should be equal to the natural period of the received wave. Roughly, the natural period of single wire antenna is 1.22 times the length of the antenna proper, plus the lead-in. This natural of the antenna system should be, as stated above, just slightly less than the wave length on which reception is desired. By actual

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

Isaak Newlin, an Eskimo in his early twenties, is a radio operator of marked ability in Alaska.

Dealers are getting business by testing out each set sold, using it to receive over their own antenna.

Lakeview, Ore., has begun to worry about the time lost by its people because of the lure of radio programs.

A song writer composed a song en route to Europe and sent it by radio from midocean for publication. Each note was indicated by name, as "mi, re, do, la-sharp, sol-sharp, etc."

Each fire alarm box in the Presidio, San Francisco, is to be equipped with a radio vibrator, which will turn in an alarm at headquarters when any one yells "Fire!" into it.

At a Chautauque concert at Camden, N. Y., a large audience was so terrified by a thunderstorm received by radio from a great distance and amplified by the apparatus, that they rushed from the tent, only to find the moon shining and no signs of a storm.

Some of the fire insurance companies are demanding that radio plants be inspected and certificates of approved wiring be obtained. Possessors of radio home outfits would do well to see that their policies are not affected by the installation of their equipment.

One of the great uses of radio in the future will be the sending of day and night letters abroad. The low rates that will be possible will make such communications feasible and economical and reduce the time necessary for transacting trans-oceanic business to that of land lines.

Government officials have vetoed broadcasting by private outfits in the Canal Zone and Panama, the latter having granted all rights of wireless communication to the United States. Thousands of progressive citizens of both places have protested and offered to pay all expenses involved, but without results.

Rev. B. M. Bridges Gives Facts in His Case

It is doubtful if there has ever been a medicine endorsed by so many ministers of the Gospel as has Tanlac. Indeed, there is scarcely a faith, creed or denomination in all the land in which one, or more, of the clergymen has not publicly expressed their indebtedness to the Premier Preparation for the benefits they have derived from its use.

One of the latest to speak out in this connection is Rev. B. M. Bridges, a widely known and beloved Baptist preacher, residing at Mooresboro, N. C., whose statement follows:

"Tanlac has given me a good appetite, toned up my system and renewed my strength in such a gratifying way that I am glad to recommend it to anyone who is in a run-down condition. For ten years past I have had such a severe case of indigestion that I could not find anything to eat that agreed with me. Finally I became very nervous and could get but very little sleep or rest.

"It seems that I took nearly everything trying to get myself right, but nothing helped me until I ran across Tanlac. My nerves are so much better now that my sleep is sound and refreshing. I enjoy my meals and have also gained weight. I can say from experience that Tanlac is a splendid medicine and tonic, for it has built me up wonderfully."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

On the Anxious Seat.

At the Brightwood branch library, one little girl was much interested in the book-reading contest. However, she wasn't interested to the extent that she would make the effort to read the ten books necessary to receive a diploma.

After the contest was closed and the winners had received their diplomas, she remarked, "If there are any diplomas left, I believe I will take one."—Indianapolis News.

New Book Ends Invented.

Because book ends relying on their weight have a tendency to slide apart on smooth tables an inventor has patented a pair mounted on rollers and held together with a spring to keep them against books between them.

Perhaps a woman wants to cheat the custom house because it might get a head start and cheat her.

Our Patriots.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts was discussing office seekers. "They are the bane of a legislator's existence," he cried, adding, "and most of them seem to think that government positions are nothing but graft. It never seems to occur to them that it takes able workers to carry on the machinery of the greatest government in the world."

"Why, the other day, in talking to a candidate for a really important position requiring a good all-round education, I discovered that the fellow actually thought that South Bend was a morning exercise."

Births and Deaths in England.

The report of the registrar general for England and Wales for 1920, just issued, shows the highest marriage rate yet recorded—20.2 per one thousand of population; the highest birth rate since 1900—25.5 per one thousand; and the highest natural increase by births over deaths of any period ever recorded in the history of the country. England and Wales added almost 500,000 to their population by natural increase during this year. The number of deaths was the lowest since 1862, when the population was half that of 1920.—The Living Age.
